FINANCIAL & COMMERCIAL.

BATURDAY EVENUES, July 22, 1845. The question as to what course the Secretary of the Treasury will pursue to meet the necessary ex-penditures of the Government until the re-assem-bling of Congress, nearly five months yet, is being protty generally discussed in financial circles. It is estimated that there remain unsold only about purpose. The modicinal tinctures, all of which are based on common alcohol, are dangerous. Quintne, absorbed by the disbursements of the Government in the payment of the armis and the meeting of 000,000 of C riffences of Indeb educes that will majure within the next ten weeks. Toward this amount its re may be expected from internal revenue, customs, the unsold portion of the 7-30 loan the Secretary has power to impe bands bearing incurrency, and should be avail himself of this privimay be able to convert the one hundred millions of Certificates of Indebtodness, leaving a balance of $200.0 0,000 which might be provided for of next year for permanent settlement. The act above referred to, however, is haid by some to confor no power upon the Secretary to issue bonds, and should such be his view he will probably have recourse mainly to One-year Certificates of Indebtedness to meet the demands upon his Department. The language of the act is as follows:

Any Treasury notes or other obligations bearing interest, issued under any set of thougasts, may, at the discreti nof the receiving of the Treasury, and with the consent of the helder, be converted into any description of bonds authorized by this act; and no bonds so attherized shall be considered a part of the amount of $600,000,000 hereinbefore authorized. change to day. The demand for discounts with most of the N aha was good, and regalar curron oes found ready account olation, but outside paper and such as bears a speculative character, finds no takers. The supply of currency is quite equal to the legitimate demand. Exchange w in fair request and continues easy and firm at 1/2 to 1/4 aff buying and par selling.

The gold market rules very steady, and is apparently entirely free from speculative influence. The sales of gold by the Treasury a day or two sines, the object of which is not tully understood, rather disconcerted the "bulls," and in the absence of any knowledge as to the future intentions of the Freasury, they are disposed to let matters rest for having got this advantage to enable them to clear off their contracts, and are not making new enlight, and the demand for custome has fallen off sounderably from a week or two since. The closing price this afternoon was 142%
